

monogram. The inside is fitted up with various compartments, places for necklaces, rings, brooches, pins, and other trinkets dear to a girl's heart, and all so compact that it may be used in traveling with perfect safety. It will surely accompany Miss Roosevelt on her wedding journey. There is a cunning but stout padlock on the outside. There are even more fans in the collection of presents than there are mirrors and brooches, some of them being rarely beautiful in workmanship and material. Three parasols were received a day or so ago, one of them being especially pretty with its jeweled and gold handle. Lace, also, from a part of the precious burden, and there are a number of pieces of various length as well as articles such as fichus, handkerchiefs, collars and cuffs, etc.

The method of receiving the gifts at the White House is most methodical. Each article is numbered as it arrives and is entered upon a book with the name of the donor. The record will be used when it comes to the laborious task of putting them away.

Busy in Acknowledgments.

Miss Roosevelt is almost up-to-date in acknowledging the receipt of gifts, and each giver will have in his or her possession an autograph from either Miss Alice Lee Roosevelt or from Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Jr.

The ladies of the Cabinet will be shown all of the wedding presents the middle of the week, and before the wedding day arrives they will be carted off to the safety vaults of some storage warehouse for safe keeping until the fair owner is ready to use them in making her home beautiful.

Loving Cup From The Buckeye State

One of the most beautiful presents of the many to be given to Miss Alice Roosevelt at her wedding next Saturday will be a solid silver loving cup from the Ohio delegates in the House of Mr. Longworth.

The cup, which is of magnificent design, has been the object of much comment by those who have seen it—in the show windows of Berry and Whitmore's Jewelry Store, on F street.

Nearly twenty-four pounds of silver are contained in the cup, making it one of the largest of its kind ever turned out by Washington jewelers. It stands fully twenty inches in height, being mounted on a beveled base. The bowl of the cup is simple—the only scroll work being the engraving on one side. The inscription is:

"Presented to Miss Alice Lee Roosevelt by the Ohio delegation in the House of Representatives, 89th Congress."

Across the top, the bowl measures twelve inches. It is fourteen inches deep, its capacity being twenty pints. The cup will be presented by Representative William Aubrey Thomas, who was designated by the delegation of Mr. Longworth's colleagues to make the selection.

Bill Sewell, of Maine, On His Way to Wedding

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 10.—"Old Bill Sewell," William W. Sewall, of Island Falls, Aroostook county, Me., collector of customs, President Roosevelt's close personal friend and guide in the old Madeira camping days, is in Boston on the way to Washington, to be a guest at Miss Alice Roosevelt's wedding next Saturday.

G. A. R. Declaration Against The Confederate Flag

Whereas, it is credibly reported that the flag of the late so-called "Confederate States of America" is being displayed in public places, and on public occasions;

Whereas, to all defenders of the Stars and Stripes, and all who were loyal to the Union, that flag was, is, and ever will be, the insignia of an attempt by force of arms to divide our country and destroy our Government; and

Whereas, in this reunited land there is room for but one flag, and that one the Star Spangled Banner,

Resolved, that in the interest of the peace and good will towards all, which we desire to promote, we earnestly request all ex-Confederate soldiers, and our valiant foes, but now our fellow citizens, and chafers with us in the pride of American valor and heroism, and all the noble-spirited people of the beautiful Southland to abstain from all public displays of that emblem, which tends only to keep alive feelings which ought to be buried.

PLAN OF CAMPAIGN TO DEFEAT RATE BILL

Certainly a remarkable attitude, it seemed, for the men who only a few days ago were opposed to any legislation, or if they failed there, who demanded that the legislation should be of the mildest sort possible.

But it isn't so remarkable in the light of an explanation ventured last night in legislative circles. It was this:

"The President has succeeded in securing enough promises from his Senatorial friends of support for a moderate bill to practically assure its passage. This number in understood to include one, and maybe both, of the New York Senators, and the Massachusetts Senators, as well as two or three others in New England, concerning whose positions there has been uncertainty for some time. Therefore, the opposition is suddenly forced to the opposite tack—it must make an ironclad bill and thus drive away these timid supporters. And the first place to strike, of course, is at the express companies, because Platt is president of the United States Express Company, and recognized as the special representative of express interests in the upper chamber."

This explanation, which is given for whatever it is worth, is especially interesting in the light of what happened in the House on the day before the rate bill passed, and of what happened in the Senate committee yesterday.

Mysterious Section 1.

The Dooliver-Hepburn bill—the one that passed the House—was based on a draft made by the Interstate Commerce Commission. That draft was afterward worked over in the House committee. Probably no man had more to do with shaping it in the form in which it left the Interstate Commission than Chairman Knapp. Probably none was more influential during its consideration in the House committee than Chairman Hepburn. Yet these two men utterly disagreed as to the very first question about what it meant.

"Does section 1 include express companies within its definition of transportation?" was asked of Mr. Hepburn during his closing speech before the bill went to a vote in the House.

"I should say it did not," was the reply.

"And does that section include the operations of sleeping car companies?" was further asked.

"In my opinion it does not," was the reply of the committee chairman.

So much for the construction put on the measure by Chairman Hepburn of the House committee. Now for the construction placed on the same section by Chairman Knapp, of the Interstate Commission.

Mr. Knapp was called before the Senate committee yesterday and asked the same questions that had been directed to Mr. Hepburn.

In both cases he expressed the opinion that the bill would enable the commission to reach the classes of companies under discussion. He thought the definition of "transportation," together with that of "railroad," broad enough to leave little question that sleeping car and express companies would come under the supervision of the commission.

This was about all the committee did yesterday in discussing these definitions and their effect. Senator Clapp of Minnesota, one of the advocates of regulation, who on Friday left the meeting in disgust and declared he would not attend any more till February 16, because he didn't think the committee was seriously trying to accomplish anything, was not present yesterday.

It is pointed out that if one amendment can be made to drive away the support of the New York Senators, and another, later on, can be made to reach certain relations of railroad companies to steamship companies handling import and export goods on a through rate, and thus alienate one or two other Senators, the bill will soon be loaded to the point of sinking.

And this is the latest plan of its enemies, according to report.

Instead of making the bill so poor that it will not deserve to pass, they propose to make it so objectionable that it can't pass.

February 16 will mark only the first milestone. On that day the Senate committee is agreed to vote as to what bill it will report.

After that the Senate will be given a chance to do its own manipulation of amendments.

CINCINNATI FIRM WILL MAKE UNIFORMS FOR POLICE

Police uniforms to be used during the spring and winter of 1936-37 will be manufactured by Fechheimer Brothers, of Cincinnati.

The committee of captains and lieutenants chosen by Major Sylvester to let the contract for the uniforms announced this selection yesterday afternoon. They are formerly manufactured by Rosenfeld & Brother, of Baltimore.

BADLY CUT FROM FALL.

S. W. Thompson, fifty years old, received a severe cut on his head yesterday afternoon as the result of a fall in front of 917 E street northwest. He was sent to the Emergency Hospital in an ambulance.

TIME EXPIRES MONDAY.

Exhibitors of Embroidery and Needle Work Must Report Then.

S. Kahn, Sons & Co. announce that all the pieces made for their art embroidery and needlework contest must be delivered to them by next Monday, February 12, not later.

The great interest shown in the contest makes it absolutely necessary that more time be taken than was given last year in the arrangement for exhibition, and February 12 is the last day that the articles can be received.

Receipts for each piece will be given at the bureau, first floor.

In answer to numerous inquiries the firm states that all who desire to sell the pieces exhibited will be given their aid without any charge whatever.

It is probable that a good share of the pieces displayed will be for sale, and it will be an opportunity of which lovers of beautiful things will be glad to take advantage.

Promptness in getting the pieces to the store will be a great help in the success of the exhibition.

COUNTER-INJUNCTION PLANNED UPON DOLAN

Mining Union Leader Has Report Electing Him President Read at Convention, However.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 10.—Delegates to the United Mine Workers' convention at a caucus this afternoon, following an adjournment of the convention, decided to wage a bitter war on District President Patrick Dolan and Vice President Bellingham. The same weapon used by Dolan, the injunction, will be used by the miners.

After wrangling almost the entire week for the reading of the tellers' report of the recent election, President Dolan had the report read this afternoon. He declared the officers receiving the largest number of votes to be qualified officers of the year beginning April 1. This report, if it is permitted to stand, means that Dolan is to be president of the organization for the following year beginning April 1.

JOHNSON MAY NOT HANG FOR ALLINSON MURDER

Convicted Man Confesses He Had Accomplice in Crime—Accused Now in Jail.

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Feb. 10.—There is a question whether or not Rufus Johnson, who was hanged on Friday, February 21, for the murder of Miss Florence Allison.

The convicted man made a second confession, in which he declares that George Small, at whose house he stopped when he came from Baltimore, murdered Miss Allison while he, Johnson, robbed the house. The prisoner says it was agreed between them before the crime was committed that if either should be caught the other was not to squeal. Johnson declares this statement to be true in the face of death. George Small is confined in the jail, but he does not know that he has been accused of the crime.

YOUTH KILLS SOLDIERS WITH BOMB IN WARSAW

WARSAW, Feb. 10.—A youth, apparently about nineteen years old, threw a bomb at four soldiers tonight, fatally wounding them. The boy escaped.

Shortly afterward, another bomb was exploded in the same vicinity, damaging a number of houses, but so far as can be learned without causing any casualties.
